OUR HISTORY

Seven decades of trusted distribution

Founded in 1953 by John L. Mann, Associated Aircraft Supply Co. was built on a foundation of integrity and leadership to serve the aviation, aerospace, and defense electronic industries.

Initially providing items like tires and safety equipment, the company evolved through the 1950s and 1960s to specialize in hardware, O-rings, hoses, and electrical components. By the 1970s and 1980s, Associated Aircraft Supply had adapted to the industry's changing needs, becoming a premier distributor of quality electromechanical parts worldwide.

In 2009, Jason D. Frazier acquired the company, bringing a renewed focus on technical upgrades, marketing, and strategic partnerships. Under the leadership of Denise Miller, the team continues to prioritize quality, service, and customer satisfaction.

Today, Associated Aircraft Supply remains a trusted small business and authorized distributor for top manufacturers, serving OEMs, airlines, and the U.S. Government. Known for excellence and personalized service, the company values its greatest asset — its people — and strives to deliver unmatched quality to customers worldwide.
